Cookies Definition and Types

Cookies are small text files which are downloaded to your browser when you visit a website. Most web pages contain elements from multiple web domains so when you visit our Site and Services, your browser may receive cookies from several sources. This includes third parties that we have hired to provide services on our behalf, such as site analytics or ad targeting, identity verification.

Session cookies are deleted automatically when you close your browser and persistent cookies remain on your device after the browser is closed (for example to remember your user preferences when you return to the site).

What types of cookies do we use?

As described in our Privacy Policy and Terms, we use cookies and other technologies, such as web beacons, tags and JavaScript (alone or in conjunction with cookies), to ensure visitors to our Site have the best possible experience and to provide targeted advertising. We use both session-based and persistent cookies. We set and access our own cookies on our Sites and Services, and we also use third party cookies, like Google Analytics.

The following is a list of the categories of cookies and other technologies that we use:

Strictly Necessary

These cookies and other technologies are essential to enabling your use of our Sites and Services and their features. Without these cookies, services we would provide (such as remembering your settings) cannot be supported. These cookies may be associated with personal data (e.g. would provide a link to your user account).

Functionality

These cookies and other technologies improve your experience by enabling personalization (like remembering language and region), as well as enabling certain features like tracking progress in one of our games. These cookies may be associated with personal data (e.g. would provide a link to your user account).

Analytics / Performance

These cookies and other technologies help us learn how well our Site and Services are performing. We use these cookies to understand, improve, and research our Site and Services. These cookies may be associated with personal data (e.g. would provide a link to your user account).

Targeting or Advertising

Cookies and other technologies such as advertising pixels collect information about the browsing habits associated with your device and are used to make advertising more relevant to you and your interests. Third parties provide these services in return for recognizing that you (or more accurately your device) have visited a certain Site or Service. These third parties put down advertising cookies both when you visit our Sites and Services and when you use their services and navigate away from our Sites and Services. These cookies may be associated with your personal data (e.g. your account on that third-party site such as Facebook or Twitter).

Local Shared Objects ("Flash cookies")

Local Shared Objects (aka "Flash cookies") and local storage in HTML5 may also be used on our Sites and Services to enhance your experience by, for example, storing your user preferences and settings like volume/mute settings. Local Shared Objects are data files similar to browser cookies but can store more complex data than simple text. You can manage local shared objects by following the instructions on Adobe's help site here.

1. USE OF IP ADDRESSES AND WEB LOGS

We may also use your IP address and browser type to help diagnose problems with our server; to administer our Sites and Services and to improve the Sites and Services we offer to you. An IP address is a numeric code that identifies your computer on the internet.

2. DO NOT TRACK

Various browsers - including Internet Explorer, Firefox, and Safari - offer a "do not track" or "DNT" option that relies on technology known as a DNT header, which sends a signal to the websites visited by the user about the user's browsers DNT preference setting. We do not currently commit to responding to browser's DNT preference across its Sites, because no common industry standard for DNT has been adopted by industry groups, technology companies or regulators, including no consistent standard of interpreting user intent. We take privacy and choices regarding privacy seriously and will make every effort to continue to monitor the development of a standard for DNT.
